OMNI-LITE RECEIVES NEW ORDERS IN THE MILITARY, AEROSPACE AND AUTOMOTIVE DIVISIONS AND ACCELERATES RESEARCH ACTIVITIES ON KEY PROGRAMS

OMNI-LITE INDUSTRIES CANADA INC. OML-TSX VENTURE

CERRITOS, CALIFORNIA, March 6, 2008 – Omni-Lite Industries Canada Inc. is pleased to announce that it has received several new orders in the Military, Aerospace and Automotive divisions. The total value of these orders is approximately $544,000 US. Of particular significance is a new military contract that places Omni-Lite at the forefront of an ambitious development program for the U.S. Military. The Company is scheduled to complete this research program by Oct 30, 2008. If successful in the initial portion of the program, significant mid and long-term initiatives could develop for the Company. In this effort, the Company is proposing to utilize one of the patented processes that it developed for such complex programs. It is unlikely that this program will be successful without this novel technology.

In addition to these efforts, the Company is developing a new military component for the large cold forging system being delivered in May 2008.

“This oversized system is well suited for the groundbreaking research into this military component. The Company feels that significant intellectual property could be developed in this program,” stated Dan Mielke, Manufacturing Manager. “The project has been underway for approximately 10 months and will probably require an additional 18 months to complete. The long-term potential of this program justifies the significant resources that Omni-Lite is expending on this program.”

Omni-Lite is a rapidly growing high technology company that develops and manufactures precision components utilized by 50 companies including Boeing, Airbus, Alcoa, Chrysler, the U.S. Military, Nike, adidas and Reebok.
